SAMPLE PASSAGE:

5 The railroad was not the first institution to impose regularly on society, or to draw attention to the importance of precise timekeeping. For as long as merchants have set out their wares at daybreak and communal festivities have been celebrated, people have been in rough agreement with their neighbors as to the time of day. The value of this tradition is today more apparent than ever. Were it not for public acceptance of a single yardstick of time, social life would unbearably chaotic: the massive daily transfer of goods, services, and information would proceed in fits and starts; the very fabric of modern society would begin to unravel.
